We're so pleased to have you on the course. This behaviour management course is going to look not at a thousand strategies that live one moment and die the next, but at the technical aspects of behaviour management that are so critical to teachers in our subjects. We're going to look at some simple ways to tweak your existing practise.

We're going to look at how to deal with learners who fall off task, who engage in low level disruption, and who disrupt your teaching. But we're also going to focus on the vast majority of students you work with who are dedicated, well-mannered, and diligent in their work. This is a five week course with video clips, audio files, quizzes, and most importantly, some action research so you can test out some of the ideas I give you with your students in your context.

Thanks for finding us. And I really hope you enjoy the course.
